Loader Training Edmonton - Loader Training - Anyone who would like to operate a forklift has to take a Loader Training course to be able to become a certified forklift truck operator. There are various ways to acquire forklift training. Programs are provided through company forklift certification programs, workforce training agencies, and approved video and on-line programs. The cost could be minimal (or without charge) when provided through employment agencies or by occupational safety officers on job sites.

In most countries, forklift operators are required to be above the age of 18 years old. Local industry bodies in cooperation with federal and local authorities can approve the Loader Training courses. They require that operators obtain lift truck certification prior to using a forklift equipment. A certificate is valid for four years in most areas. Companies that hire workers to drive lift truck trucks can face serious liability problems if operators fail to keep this certificate up to date.

The untrained forklift operator is more at risk to result in damage or injuries because of incorrect operation of the forklift. Thus, safety training programs will comprise correct methods for driving and loading. Workers should pass a written exam to be able to be certified. A business will normally assign a supervisor to be able to provide hands-on training to new staff. A licensed supervisor should have extensive training in lift truck safety and be licensed as a trainer.
